Rocky Flats Refuge: Westminster may block Indiana bridge to RM Greenway

Hello all. This first post is to test whether PNG files are compressed too much by Nextdoor, and contains NIST data about what radioisotopes are in Rocky Flats soil (two locations, collected 1978). Almost all come from decay of three natural isotopes,  $^{40}\text{K}$ ,  $^{232}\text{Th}$ , and  $^{238}\text{U}$ , with traces from Pu. This image is a prelude to much more MEASURED data coming up. I will use this to summon large scale support for completion of the Rocky Mountain Greenway, despite what smells like me to imminent capitulation by the Westminster City Council to the usual codswallop from anti-nuclear activists. Stay tuned!

Followup: Looks too fuzzy, cannot easily download. Damn.

Can't use PDFs AND Nextdoor makes it impossible to download even a big, clean PNG. Bummer--I'll have to give links, which will lose lots of the audience. Clearly a First World problem.

It's readable on the phone if you expand.

Deb, thanks very much for the information about phone viewing -- it's much clearer than viewing it via web browser. Thanks for letting me know!

Can you explain what you mean by "greenway"? I assume that you are not referring to the Jefferson Parkway which needs to be officially killed but is still being supported by several entities?

Laura: most of Rocky Flats has been a National Wildlife Refuge since about 2018, trails, things to see. It is an attractive amenity for those living on this side of Denver.
